Will this ratio continue?

One of the greatest advertisements of advertising may be observed at Beaver Dam, where only a single firm, Barnes Bros., advertises. This firm is a persistent advertiser and its trade keeps a small army of salespeople hustling from year's end to year's end.

The records of the Fiscal Court show there is a committee in existence whose duty it is to contract for the county printing. It is unnecessary to say this committee makes no effort to save the taxpayers money by competitive bidding for this work, but that it goes as a fancy graft to the Democratic organ here.

BECAUSE of the great strike in the anthracite coal fields, there is much suffering in Northern and Eastern cities on account of lack of fuel. A wag has remarked that with the sale in New York of each ton of coal the dealer throws in a Steinway piano, and the piano dealer throws in a lump of coal with each piano sold.

It is the duty of parents to provide their children with the best class of current literature, and the best current literature is to be found in the high-class magazines. Among these we take pleasure in recommending to our readers McClure's Magazine. McClure's is only one dollar a year, and we shall take pleasure in ordering it for our readers.

THE Hartford Herald received orders this week to announce two candidates for Circuit Court Clerk—Mr. Charlie Ford, of Fordsville, and Albert Short (of col.) of Rockport. Mr. Ford's announcement appeared, Mr. Short's didn't. We mean no disrespect to Mr. Ford, who is a gentleman of character and our personal friend, but the contrast in the Herald's conduct is remarkable, since it fluttered and fawned at the feet of Mr. Short, while it thought he would be a Republican candidate, but threw him down with a thud when Short asked it to announce him as a Democratic candidate.

THE County Board of Tax Supervisors adjourned Wednesday after saddling an additional burden of $2,000 on the taxpayers of Ohio county. The present members of the board, with the exception of Mr. Holbrook, have served since Judge Miller went into office and will serve till he goes out, are largely Populistic and are never so happy as when indulging in the pleasant pastime of raising the assessed valuation of the Taylor Coal Company. This company is the largest wage-paying, market-producing concern in Ohio county, and if its raw material had not been non-transportable this Populistic Board would have taxed it out of the county some time ago.

THE HERALD, SHORT & CO.

For some weeks past the Hartford Herald has been tearing its hair and wailing wails never waited before, in its anxious anxiety for somebody to champion its alleged candidacy of a negro, Short, who was doubtless furnished free copies of the Herald, was enough to tumble to the cooling of his new found lover and straightway took his pen in hand and wrote her to announce him in her Wednesday's issue as a sure-enough candidate. Heavy must have been candidate Short's heart when he scanned carefully the columns of his organ Wednesday and found his announcement not.

If candidate Short is of a religious turn of mind, he probably put away his sorrows with the quotation: "Whom the Herald loveth it chasteneth." While the Herald thought Short would, perhaps, become a Republican candidate, its heart bled and its eyes flooded with tears and its hair was torn over the cool reception of his candidacy by that party, but when it found that the soul of Short had been so deeply touched by its tears and heartaches and disheveled hair, that he had put himself under its patronage and asked it to become sponsor for his candidacy, the old hypocrite laid his letter by for future reference, and raised not his name on his list of announcements. Indeed, the Herald flattered the negro Short too much.

AFTER THE GRAFT.

The "Economy" Fiscal administration of Ohio county is letting our public road run to muck in the low lands and to gullies on the hills, but it seems to be looking pretty closely to the interest of number six and the head of the house. At the beginning of 1902, number six took unto themselves the honors, profits and emoluments of the offices of road and bridge commissioner in their respective districts, notwithstanding, each of this select number had promised, these offices, during his candidacy, from two to a dozen of his constituents.

This "Economy Court," at the sitting referred to, also created the unnecessary and uncalled for office of County Treasurer. The taxpayers, who objected to the scheme, were appeased by the plea that it would cost them nothing, inasmuch as that officer, which was a bank, would take in the taxpayer's money and lend it back to him at ten per cent. and serve him as County Treasurer to boot. But it worked out thusly: Number six had already grafted the salaries of the road and bridge commissioners into their own stock, and as the head of the house, who presides over number six, had been already given a raise of salary of $150 per annum, and as the taxpayers might just back at another raise, they would just give him another raise of $100 per annum, and credit it to his account as Auditor to the County Treasurer.

The "Economy Court," just adjourned, continuing its policy of taking unto itself every thing in sight, appointed two of its members a committee to settle with the Sheriff, and to those familiar with the Fiscal Court order book, the sentence "allowed for services as committee to," etc., occurs not unfrequently. As the Fiscal Court has taken to itself about every thing in arm's reach, they will, perhaps, bring spike-poles and grab-hooks next year.

ADVICE TO YOUNG MEN.

If the voice of age whispering back to youth is rich in timely warnings, may not one, nearing the second watch of life, who has glanced back along his path and shuddered at the frightful wrecks of wasted hours that mark its way, give some friendly counsel to young men, of the wondrous wealth stored up for them in the vaults of time. Time is like the river's flood which serves those only who cast their freight upon its bosom, not those who idle along its shores. In all ages, those who know the value of time have been the masters of the slaves who knew it not.

Of the vast number of men who have succeeded in life without a finished literary education, none of them is proud that he did not have it, but it is the practical education after all that is indispensable, and everybody in the country may have it if he is willing to make the necessary sacrifice for it. But it is only won by hard work. By devoting every spare moment to study, to reading and reflecting upon the matter read. This means a sacrifice of the ball game, the fishing party, the noonday nap, the Saturday evening loafing at the country store, and a hundred other little pleasures of which a young life is fond. But this is the price a young man must pay for a place in the world. We are writing this for Ohio county boys, most of whom are poor as the world reckons wealth, but hoping to interest them in drawing upon the unlimited riches in the storehouse of time. Time is every man's capital. It must be spent. It is man's only capital that he is forced to spend. It also must bring a recompense somewhere between a throne and a prison.

Study brings knowledge, work brings wealth, and idleness is repaid in all those evils that make humanity mourn. Fortunately for society, the young man who spends his evenings with his Shakespeare, Scott or Dickens, is preparing himself to battle with the evils which must result from another young man's evenings spent in the barroom or gambling house. Men are essentially social creatures and the young man may not be expected to spend every moment of his spare time with his books, but he should have his social intercourse as much as possible with other students. Indeed, there is no more practical way of a student enlarging his store of knowledge than by well directed interchange of thought and fact with fellow-students.

This is an age of cheap printing. Any of the best authors may be had in cheap but serviceable binding for a few cents. The young man should, however, be as cautious in the selection of his authors as he should in the selection of his associates. All books may not be read with profit, and many of them are positively harmful. But read. Read and ponder over the important features of what you have read. This habit of reflecting fixes well the facts in your mind where they may be drawn upon for future use. By putting in all your spare moments in reading and reflecting, you will in a few years accumulate a fund of knowledge that will insure you a commanding position among your fellowmen. You will not, indeed, be able to comprehend just how much you learned in any given fragment of time snatched from your work for study, but as the tiny rain drops flood the mighty river, the little fragments learned here and there will in time form a mighty fund of knowledge. It is, indeed, a sacrifice for a young man to deny himself the common pleasure that youth loves so well, to give all his spare time to study, but it is after all an investment that will, in manhood and age, repay him a hundred fold.

Tightly Locked From Nervous Spasms.

Physicians Could Not Prevent Fits.

Dr. Miles' Nerve Cured My Wife.

Dr. Miles' Nerve Cured My Wife. Seven years ago my wife commenced having spasms of fits and I called in my home physician and he said she was paralyzed. He rubbed her with salt water and gave her calomel and she eventually got some better, but in a short time she had another attack. She was confined to her bed for three months and the doctor could not help her. She had fits frequently, some times very severe. Her hands would clasp so we could not open them and she finally got so her legs would become locked. Finally I saw the doctor was doing her no good and ordered a bottle of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nerve Tonic. She took it and in a few days she was able to get up and walk. She also thinks very highly of Dr. Miles' Nerve Tonic and is never without it. If there is any way of making this testimonial stronger so because of the good the Dr. Miles' Restorative Nerve Tonic did my wife, I will, for free, send a bottle to any one who will send me a few lines. Address, Dr. J. C. Allen, P. M., Elkville, Miss.
